“ Occupational Therapy is a good fit for me. My background as a musician

(Professional Harpist) opened my eyes to how practical and useful OT can be, particularly when addressing specific and repetitive tasks and motions. I love looking at the big picture of a person’s total work and living environment to help them better manage the effects of their limitations. No one is the same. That variety and opportunity to do creative problem solving makes the job very rewarding – helping people reconnect with meaningful work and leisure activities.

On the personal side, I enjoy contributing to my community as a performing harpist.”
